On the Diamond. The skies are clear, The boys all cheer, updall season new is here. With but in hand. The how ling band bulste the updown the land. The color installed.
Then 'lime' is called,
and butte color bouly hawled
With ringing about
The players rent
And try to just each other on.

The pitcher, be, With exvage glee, as wildly, with celerity. The entoker stands, As he expands, d the lat, with yawning hands.

The unpire by,
With wanthful eye,
With wanthful eye,
Looks out for halfs that feality fly
He doth preserve
An iron hiere.
And from his duty ne'er will swerve.

And trum is a ver;
They count the score.
They count the score.
The doctor counces,
And blithely hours
While higher theolen thumbs.

The Diocesan Synod of Armagh lately discovered the practice existing in various parts of north of Ireland of drinking other instead of whisky. The habit pre-vails largely, and has given rise to several cases of insanity. The cause of the pre-ference for other is that it is a cheaper in-toxicant. The Synod recommends that the traffic in this and other noxious drugs be restricted, so north of Ireland men will soon have to fall back again on whisky.
